This is in compliance with Annual Raw Material Supplier Certification/Undertaking [21 C.F.R. 589.2001 and 21 U.S.C. 331(h), 333]. The expanded Food and Drug Administration Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) Rule, which prohibits the use of certain cattle origin materials in food or feed of animals. Collectively these materials are called "Cattle Material Prohibited from Animal Feed" (CMPAF). Prohibited Materials or CMPAF include: (1) brains and/or spinal cords of cattle aged 30 months or older; (2) any part of the carcass of BSE-positive cattle; and (3) any part of the carcass of cattle aged 30 months and older which have not been inspected and passed for human consumption and from which the brain and/or spinal cords have not been removed.
